As for the acting allowance, it depends on the pay of the appointment but in this case as the appointment of Senior Surgeon carries no fixed pay. But no officer of lower rank & status than a major generally holds this appointment. It would therefore be fair to calculate the acting allowance on the pay of a major of 3 years standing i.e. Rs 950. A fifth of this will be Rs 190 which may be given to Mr. Mehgotra as acting allowance. His total salary of a local medical officer on the pay fixed for the former class of officers.

Dr Smythe was getting a local allowance of Rs 500/. Agreeably to art 20(b) of the M.S.R. it is payable to the Acting Senior Surgeon Mr Sehgel Rao, but in all previous cases such allowance was treated as part of the permanent incumbent's pay and the acting allowance of the Acting officer was calculated upon the British pay proper and the allowance of the former officer. Accordingly when Coll Smyth was appointed to act as Senior Surgeon during the absence of Coll Benson on leave he was given only acting allowance Rs 3[5]/10 (vide margin) while Coll Benson who was on leave drew his pay proper and the allowance, as the whole was treated as Mysore salary. and even Exchange — Compensation allowance was paid on that salary. But the new rules about local officers are very strict and the allowance is distinctly called "local allowance" in the case of Coll Smyth Mr Raunt claimed any compensation allowance on his local allowance while on duty or the local allowance during his absence on privilege leave as in the case of Dr McGann and Dr Benson. If the local allowance of Rs 500/ is available for payment, then as it will richly compensate an acting officer, it is sufficient to give Dr Achyut Rao the local allowance in addition to his pay (i-e Rs 600) or in all Rs 1100/- Otherwise his salary may be fixed, as explained below.

On the analogy of rule 1 art 25 his acting allowance may be calculated upon the pay he would from time to time receive, if he held the appointment permanently. Generally the highest pay allowed to the head of a Department in Mysore is Rs 1200/ which in the case of a local Senior Surgeon may be taken as proper remuneration for all the duties required of him. Dr Achyut Rao may be entitled to receive this pay if he is permanently appointed to the post. The acting allowance on this pay will be Rs 240/ which sum added to his pay viz Rs 600/ will give him a salary of Rs 840/ but as this sum is less than what he was already getting as acting
